

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT:

Greer Deal (Mrs)

Global Regulatory Services

Phone: +44 (0)1353 774000

enquiries@globalregulatoryservices.com

www.globalregulatoryservices.com

New Botanicals Stream announced for Genesis Conference (London)
10 December 2009

23 November 2009 – Cambridge, UK. Global Regulatory Services (GRS) is pleased to announce that they are co-hosting the Botanicals Stream at the Genesis Conference (the leading Biotechnology Networking Conference) in London on Thursday 10 December 2009.

With Research & Development pipelines at an all time low and many drugs going off patent in 2010 and 2011, pharmaceutical and biotech companies are actively revisiting the source of many of today's drugs i.e. plants. A number of phytomedicinal start-ups are appearing and information about research into plants and plant-derived extracts can often be read in industry literature. Then, of course, there are Traditional Chinese Medicines and Ayurveda Remedies which have been used for thousands of years in China and India respectively. Couple this increased interest in botanicals with improved investigative technology, there are plenty of opportunities out there for companies to embrace with regards to both traditional herbal remedies and plant-derived medicinal products.

This new stream will provide delegates with an overview of what's happening in the botanicals sector with examples from a selection of individuals already active in the market along with key considerations. Subjects to be discussed will include the European regulations (to be presented by Global Regulatory Services), research, quality control, Intellectual Property and the experiences of an herbal medicine manufacturer.

This Botanicals Stream forms part of the 2-day Genesis 2009 Conference (www.genesisconference.com) and registered delegates will have full access to all conference sessions, online networking, exhibition and catering. For more information on the Botanicals Stream, please visit our website, www.globalregulatoryservices.com.

About Global Regulatory Services (GRS):

We are a full service regulatory affairs consultancy based in the UK offering resource, support, advice and solutions to life science companies worldwide. We have established an extensive network of consultants and associates throughout the world with particularly strong connections in Europe, America, Canada and Asia. Our professionals are all very experienced with many of them being leaders in their own field ranging from Traditional Herbal Medicines through to Stem Cell Therapy and Regenerative Medicine.

###

If you would like more information about Global Regulatory Services please visit

www.globalregulatoryservices.com

Contact Greer Deal at enquiries@globalregulatoryservices.com or call +44 (0)1353 774000